

KILLER GENES

an arctic⁶
adventure

by C T Furlong

In this second adventure the ARCTIC6 discover a scientific facility where the sinister Peter Gek creates genetically modified viruses.

The victim of one of these viruses – the President of the United States, visiting a London conference, lies in a coma.

Can the ARCTIC6 discover a cure before the facility blows up and stop Gek from unleashing his viruses on the world?

And can they save the president?

"I know that it's hard to believe that one man can change the world, but he can if he embodies the hopes and dreams of everyone. We need to wake him, not only because he represents something good in this world, but also because he can help us stop something bad – GEK!"

On holiday in Suffolk, the ARCTIC6 stumble into their second mission, when they discover Peter Gek's forbidding research facility. Here they discover that Gek is testing his viruses on more than just lab-rats!

But as the gang start to unravel Gek's heinous plans, Charlie is taken seriously ill.

Meanwhile, journalist Evan Andrews is on the trail of a deadly plague in Africa – a devastating virus, which kills everyone who comes into contact with it – apart from him!

In a race against time, the ARCTIC6 need to find a cure, and rescue the 'lab-rats', before Gek blows the whole place sky-high.

And they also need to solve the mystery of the African Plague, before it spreads further afield.

The Author - C.T. Furlong

Carol Furlong grew up in Ireland and studied Science at Carlow Institute of Technology, and promptly forgot most of it. After travelling in Europe, working in the music business in London and in the fashion business in Antwerp, a childhood love of adventure stories, coupled with the long neglected interest in science, resulted in the creation of the ARCTIC 6. She is married with two young children and lives in the remote wilds of Suffolk.
